Qualitative

Is there any additional feedback you would like to provide about the instructor (e.g., teaching style, time management, accessibility)? -

- He was very easy to approach, very respectful, and always started right on time.
- Teaching style is very hands on, which I like. Integrating the New York Times and current events/discussing social issues at the beginning of class is also helpful. Gets people talking and engaging.
- Great
- I really liked the way that that they class was structured. Particularly the news segments at the beginning of class
- Lecture notes were well organized and provided an easy guide to use to study for exams. Time was well spent during the class period.
- no
- Good professor
- I really enjoyed the class! It always felt like no matter what side you were on it was an open environment.
- I like how you are objective in the class, it allows for people to come up with their own thoughts and perspective without influence.
- Your teaching style has easily been my favorite of any teacher I've had. I enjoyed the news briefing at the beginning of each class immensely. I woke up in the morning looking forward to that briefing at 8:10am! Your class always allowed for robust discussion, and you facilitated well.
- I really appreciate that you put the PowerPoints on blackboard, they come in handy for studying.

Is there any additional feedback you would like to provide about the course (e.g., workload, content, technology)? -

- N/A
- The workload of the course was minimal, yet I feel like a more politically well-versed person at the end. As a Political Science major, this course has made me look forward to the future courses.
- there is too much outside reading
- no
- Workload was definitely manageable. NYT quizzes helped inform on what was happening now around the U.S. and the world which kept things very interesting. Content was very helpful and essential to understanding politics and government.
- Great
- The articles uploaded to blackboard (while I read them) could potentially be taken advantage of... most will not read them without the material being enforced. (Possibly include a question or two on the quizzes?)
- Workload is manageable... I just wish that he would quiz over the assigned readings so that people would actually do them!
